Director Says Three Week Delay Before New Penalties Become Effective

Section nine of the new UNO Campus Traffic Rules and Regulations, the green pamphlet being distributed by Campus Security, will not go into effect immediately according to the Director of Campus Security, Verne H. McClurg. Section nine concerns violations of UNO traffic regulations and the penalties for these violations, which include increases in the cost of fines for some violations.

Campus Security has ordered a new type of ticket, McClurg said, that corresponds to these changes in the traffic regulations, however they will not arrive on campus for about three weeks.

Until that time the old version of penalties and fines contained in last year's rules and regulations will be in effect, he said. The other eight sections of this year's version, though, will go into effect immediately.

Campus Security will announce in the Gateway, McClurg said, when the new tickets arrive and when the new set of penalties will go into effect.

The new set of fines will include an increase in the amount to be paid for a number of violations. Any moving violation will cost the offender $10 compared to the current three. Parking without a valid permit will go from a fine of five dollars to a fine of ten. Parking in an unauthorized area will go from a penalty of three dollars to five.

A number of new violations are also to be added including the obtaining of a parking permit under false pretenses and the use of a counterfeit permit, both carrying a fine of $25.

Cafeteria Prices Rise

The new food prices which went into effect at the Student Center Monday are, on the average, over 27 per cent higher than they were before the increase.

Dr. Ronald Beer, vice chancellor for educational and student services, said, however, that the actual cost increase to the average customer would be between 15 and 20 per cent when the total sales volume aspect is taken into consideration. Beer said low price increases of high volume items, for example coffee and soft drinks which did not go up at all, would offset the larger percentage price increases of some food items.

Beer said the decision to raise the prices was based on data available at the end of the last fiscal year ending June 30, which reflected the rising costs of food on the open market. Prices were not raised until this time, Beer said, because of the federal price freeze which did not end until Aug. 12.

Vegetarians were hit the hardest by the price increases. The average cost of vegetables on the Food Service menu was up 54 per cent. All potato dishes rose a dime while fresh and frozen vegetables went from 20 to 35 cents. The average salad increased 32 per cent.

The average cost of a main dish offered in the cafeteria rose over 27 per cent. Some of the largest increases included chicken fried steak and country fried steak which went from 60 to 95 cents, while pork chops and swiss steak rose from 60 to 90 cents, and roast beef went from 65 to 90 cents.

Two main dishes remained the same — fish sticks and scrambled eggs and sausage — at 60 cents.

The cost of the average breakfast item rose over 26 per cent led by an increase from 30 to 45 cents for three slices of bacon.

Stickers Raise Legality Question

The new parking permit sticker you just put in the rear window of your car may be there contrary to state statute and city ordinance.

The instructions received with one of the new permits says it "is to be placed on the upper corner of the inside of the vehicle's rear deck window so that when you are standing behind the vehicle, the sticker is clearly visible in the upper right side of the rear deck window."

Section seven of the new UNO Campus Traffic and Parking Regulations issued by Campus Security states the same instructions.

Statute 39-7,123.04, though, of the Revised Statutes of Nebraska states: "It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a motor vehicle with any object placed or hung in or upon such vehicle. . . in such a manner as to obstruct or interfere with the view of the operator through the windshield, or to prevent him from having a clear and full view of the road and condition of traffic behind such vehicle."

The statute continues with a provision which Verne H. McClurg, director of Campus Security at UNO, said allows the permits to be placed on the windows.

The statute continues: "Provided, any sticker or identification authorized or required by the federal government or any agency thereof or the State of Nebraska or any political subdivision thereof may be placed upon the windshield without violating the provisions of this section."

McClurg said the University's lawyer and the lawyer for the Omaha Public Safety Department got together on the matter and decided that the term "windshield" in the statute could be interpreted to include the rear window of a vehicle.

However, Lt. Frank Cominoli of the Omaha Police Dept.'s Traffic Section said section 35.32.060 of the Omaha Municipality Code prohibits the placing of stickers on the rear windows of cars.

That section states: "The windows and windshield glass of motor vehicles shall not be cracked, broken or discolored and shall be kept free and clear of stickers, signs, posters, other nontransparent materials or obstructions which hinder the view of the driver or operator thereof, except such as may be required by law."

"And there are only two stickers required by law in Omaha," Cominoli said, "the Nebraska safety inspection sticker and the Omaha tax sticker which go on the lower corners of the windshield."

Donation by the Senior Class of 1966 Finances Clock Structure Outside MBSC

UNO students can now pass the time of day walking past the Student Center.

The new modern-looking wooden structure in the walkway south of the Student Center is a clock donated to the University by the 1966 senior class of the old Omaha University.

Thelma Engle, associate director of the Student Center, said the class originally contributed the money back in 1966 for the construction of a little spot near the Student Center to be called the "O.U. Rendezvous" where students could gather and that would be a focal point on campus.

When plans were formulated for the addition to the Student Center the project was postponed and the money was put into a bank account "for something appropriate in the future."

Duane D. Mannon, treasurer of that senior class and one of the coordinators of the project, said the class's idea was to give the University something that would add to the aesthetics of the campus.

The result, seven years later, is the clock designed by the architects of the Student Center addition, Boyer, Biskup and Bonge of Omaha. "Personally, I think UNO has one of the prettiest campuses I've ever seen," Mannon said, "but it's little things like this that really help."

Editorial

Students' Newspaper

Next to the Gateway nameplate on the first page of today's paper appears a script which will run in that spot in all of this fall's issues.

"Published by and for the students of the University of Nebraska at Omaha" is an idea that the new staff of this semester's Gateway feels is important.

Approximately two-thirds of the Gateway's operating budget is funded through student fees. The other third comes from advertising. Ideally the entire cost would be covered by the advertising revenue. However, a newspaper, especially a campus newspaper, is not an easy means of making money. This is shown by the relatively small number, as compared to other business ventures, of successful papers across the United States.

A student newspaper, though, is a necessity in a college setting; acting as a vehicle of information, answering questions which are important to students and speaking for the students in matters concerning the University.

As the Gateway is funded mostly by the students, we will do our best to perform these services. We have attempted to assemble a staff with experience in reporting and writing that will be aggressive, but as fair as possible, in covering the University and the affairs which are important to its citizens.

No newspaper is purely objective in what it does, merely because human beings must make the decisions of what stories are to be covered and what questions are to be asked.

However, we have no personal causes which will be promoted in the news columns as has sometimes been done in Gateways of the past. A sincere attempt will be made to keep opinions on the editorial page.

Letters Welcome

As the Gateway is your newspaper, you should have inter-action with it, and communication is the key.

Space will be provided on this page in each issue for letters to the editor.

All members of the student body, faculty, administration, staff and general public are invited to use this space to voice their opinions of, not only this paper, but all matters concerning the University. We do ask that all letters to be printed be signed with name, address and/or university department.

However, we also invite letters of criticisms and suggestions not meant for publication — signed or unsigned.

Free Ads

The Gateway will also resume a service that has been offered during various semesters in the past, free classified advertisements.

All UNO students, faculty and staff are invited to take advantage of this opportunity, using all the standard categories of classifieds from the "for sale" to the "personals."

Ads must be typewritten, 25 words or less, and personally delivered to the Gateway office between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The ads will run in two issues — the Wednesday and Friday after the week they are received — and then discontinued. Persons who wish their ads to run longer will have to resubmit them each week. Otherwise, the ads would accumulate over the semester to a degree that there would be room for nothing else. This would be good or bad depending on your point of view.

The Gateway also reserves the right to reject any ad for publication.

728 Graduate this Summer

Less than half of the 728 eligible candidates for summer graduation at UNO attended the Summer Commencement exercises last Saturday (Aug. 18) at the performing Arts Center.

The center's auditorium was filled to overflowing, however, with many of the over 1,300 friends and relatives of the participating graduates complaining about the lack of seating.

Guest Overflow

Folding chairs were set up in the corridor where loudspeakers and a closed circuit television relayed the ceremony to over 400 guests who could not get into the auditorium. Many of the visitors crowded into the entrances of the auditorium and sat in the aisles while others sat outside in the shade and waited for the ceremonies to end.

Chancellor Ronald Roskens explained in his opening remarks to the audience that the ceremonies were held in the Performing Arts Center instead of the larger University Fieldhouse because the center was air conditioned.

Referring to the 80-degree plus heat outside, Roskens told the people that even though they were cramped in the Performing Arts Center, they would rather be there than in the much hotter Fieldhouse.

The Chancellor promised, though, that "in a year or two we'll have a large enough air-conditioned place" for such events.

Bootstraps Dominated

The graduates present, dominated by the College of Continuing Studies' Bootstrap program, heard an address on how to structure their life-styles for an efficient, productive and successful life. Dr. John P. McGovern, a medical doctor and world-famous allergy specialist from Houston, Texas, told the graduates in his commencement address, "On Day-Tight Compartments," that they should devote their time each day to mental conquests.

Set Daily Goals

"Life should be lived in day-tight compartments," he said, "which give you a way to manage and control your life." He said that everyone should discipline themselves to accomplish certain goals every day.

"But," he continued, "our society has made discipline a naughty word."

Dean Elton S. Carter of the Graduate College presented graduate degrees to those present of the 188 eligible for advanced degrees including Specialist in Education, Master of Arts, Master of Science, Master of Business Administration, Master of Public Administration and Certifications for School Psychologist Programs.

The deans of the undergraduate colleges presented degrees to graduates present from their respective colleges which included eight graduating with honors.

Honor Grads

Graduating magna cum laude were Paul Fishburn, Patricia Heather and Donna McCunn with Bachelor of Arts degrees; Darlene Crow, Elizabeth Queensland and Marlene Rumer — Bachelor of Science in Education.

Graduating cum laude were Rose Ann Shannon — Bachelor of Science and Mary Hartman — Bachelor of General Studies.

Chancellor Roskens also presented an honorary Doctor of Science degree from UNO to Dr. McGovern for his outstanding contributions to medical science.

Food

The high volume breakfast items, according to Food Service Director Bill Hunter, donuts and sweet rolls, remained the same price.

The average cost of cold sandwiches rose over 25 per cent. Corned beef went from 45 to 70 cents while roast beef and roast pork sandwiches went up 20 cents each.

Dessert rose 22 per cent, hot sandwiches 17 and soups 12. Coffee, soft drink and milk prices all remained the same. Tea went up a nickle.

The Blue Plate Special which was started last year will again be offered, up to $1.10 from the previous one dollar. However, the main dish will be a casserole-type compared to the chicken, beef and pork offered in the specials last year.

Hunter said he could not offer meat dishes in the special this year because of the large increases in the costs of those items.

"Meat and poultry prices have skyrocketed," he said. Along with the casserole dish, the specials will include a vegetable, salad and bread or roll with butter. The Blue Plate will be offered in the cafeteria during weekday lunch hours, from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Beer said if the food market shifts downward in the future there might be a chance that prices could be lowered.

"In another three months we'll take another look at things," he said, "and if we can readjust our prices downward — we will."

"We operate on a policy of a break-even fiscal plan at the Student Center," Beer said,

... Registration lines seem to be the only thing around this university that never change. Registration and change of programs will continue through this Friday and final figures on enrollment will be available by Friday, September 7.

Home Ec Merger Meeting Today

Dr. Mary Hall, Associate Dean of Home Economics, will hold two meetings today to up-date students on the latest developments of the UNO/UNL Home Economics merger.

The meetings will be held in Room 110 of the Administration Building at 12:30 and 6:00 p.m. today. Dr. Hall said she is holding the meetings to inform students in home economics of the merger situation and to answer any problems they might have concerning the new set-up.

Dr. Hall was formerly Chairman of the UNO Home Economics Department before the merger and is now the Associate Dean of the newly created school and is a member of the University's Council of Deans.

Nature Center Seeks Volunteer Teachers

The Fontenelle Forest Nature Center is seeking men and women to be volunteer teacher-naturalists.

Volunteers will spend at least three consecutive hours a week during the school year teaching nature and ecology to school children.

Volunteers will receive training during September and October. Interested persons may call the nature center at 731-3140.

VA Checks Arrive

Military veterans who preregistered last spring for this semester's classes should pick up their G.I. educational benefits checks at the Cashiers office according to the V.A. and the Registrar's office.

Jack Bowers, Veterans Assistance Officer at Lincoln, said the checks of only those who preregistered were sent to the school. Veterans who did not register until this fall will receive their checks through the mail to their homes.

Checks after September will be sent to veterans through the mail as in the past.

Parking

Cominoli said the ordinance has always been, and still will be, enforced. He said Omaha police have ticketed people with emblems and other stickers on their car windows. "Your people out there will be subject to ticketing," Cominoli said.

Omaha Public Safety Director Al Pattavina later said, though, that the provision in the "state statute provides that political subdivisions of the state can subscribe stickers for the identification of cars."

The state subdivisions include the state colleges and the Medical Center, he said. A private concern like Creighton, on the other hand, could not use stickers on car windows because they are not a state institution, he said.

Pattavina said the Police Department would not be issuing tickets to persons for having the stickers on their windows.

"There was some misunderstanding on the part of some of the officers concerning the UNO stickers," he said. "If anyone gets a ticket for a sticker violation from an officer who hasn't gotten the word yet, he can contact the City Prosecutor's Office to get the matter taken care of."

illegal handling of the trip.

Since the Student Senate has been unable to reach a quorum for quite some time, Parker never received full Senate approval for his appointments of McCormick, Maddocks and Ms. Magee. He chose to send them anyway.

Parker commented, "I realize it wasn't entirely legal but the students shouldn't be penalized for the Student Senate not being able to reach a quorum."

Have students actually gained anything through UNO participation in the NSA? Parker thinks so, "The Electric Window, teacher evaluations and the women's resources center were all ideas from last year's convention."

Parker also feels it unfair to look on the trip as a vacation awarded those most active in student government. He said, "Actually it's a lot of hard work, those people will come home beat to hell." In response to another query, Parker snapped, "Suntans? — not the people I sent."

At week's end he proved to be an able seer, McCormick reported himself "as white as ever."

STEREO

Here it is!! Your stereo column! Each week some information on what Hi-Fi stereo is all about and a chance for you to send or bring your questions on stereo to the people who can give you the straight scoop and answers you can use. To understand what you already own or what you might be looking at for the future can save you a lot of time and bucks.

Question: Do I need 10,000 Watts of audio power to get good sound from a home stereo?

Answer: Have you ever heard a really good sounding car radio? Most people have. That sound was not just an accident. For the same reasons, good home stereo sound depends on well matched equipment, just like the good sound in that car. I don't mean parts with the same brand name, necessarily, but the good sound in that car was probably only 10 Watts RMS audio power, tops! However, the speakers were well matched to the power available and the tuner section passed a good clean signal to the amplifier section and the whole thing was designed around the fact it was to be used in a car. Apply all that logic to buying stereo for a house or an apartment and you're well on your way to good sound the first time around.

Some common terms

Stylus — the current term for a "needle" used to play records, usually applied to the better "needles."

Tuner — the part of a modern Hi-Fi set-up that looks, acts and in truth is only a "radio" but used alone won't produce any audible sound in speakers without amplification (probably from "tune in a station").

This week's tip

Talk about the power of a stereo set-up in RMS Watts; or ask "what does that mean in RMS power?"

Brownville Fiddlers A Treat

by

Kim Monari

Historic Brownville, Nebraska, was the site for the 13th annual National Old-Time Fiddlers and Country Music Contest held on August 24th and 25th.

The contest, sponsored by the Brownville Historical Society, was held in the Brownville State Recreation located on the Missouri river front.

Contestants in the fest were entered in four separate musical categories: singing, picking, fiddling, and combo competition. A panel of judges selected the top entrants and awarded division winners $100 prizes, while 2nd and 3rd place winners took home $60 and $40 purses respectively.

Division winners then competed in a final round for the title of Grand Champion, which carried a bonus purse of $200.

Paramount in the minds of the people attending the festival was of course the music itself. But a variety of factors contributed to the overall "good time" feeling of the event. Brownville provided an ideal setting for the music fest. Quaint Old West surroundings, lush river greenery, and a truly eclectic group of folks attending, all contributed to generate a feeling of merriment.

The spirit of cooperation and simple friendliness of the people there provided an exciting backdrop for the country music. And the music was the element that held a varied and diverse group of people together for two days of frolic and good times.

Movie Review

LIVE AND LET DIE

If you like James Bond movies, but are turned off by the idea of Bond played by anyone other than Sean Connery, don't stay away from Live and Let Die for that reason. On the other hand, if you don't particularly like Bond movies, but enjoyed the chase sequences in Bullitt, The French Connection, or What's Up Doc?, this movie has something for you, too.

Different from Sean

Roger Moore is a good James Bond, though he plays the character differently from Sean Connery. In fact, Moore's Bond is rather like his Saint character on television — handsome and debonair, but wide-eyed and boyish, in contrast to Connery's icy coolness and scornful manner.

The closest Connery as Bond ever got to letting his emotions show was a twinkling of the eye when he uttered a pun, or a slight wrinkling of the brow when he encountered danger. Moore not only smiles occasionally, he even looks genuinely terror-stricken when he's being terrorized by the villains.

Spectacular Chases

The chase scenes are spectacular, and outdo anything in previous Bond movies. Although it's only hinted in the credits, the car stunts were apparently staged by Jole Chitwood, and if you've ever seen his Auto Thrill Show you can guess what to expect.

Before Live and Let Die comes to its logical climax, Bond has managed to smash up a couple of dozen cars, a dozen speedboats, and a handful of airplanes. The speedboat chase through the Louisiana bayous is worth the price of a ticket alone.

As always, Bond's girl friends (Gloria Hendry and Jane Seymour) are pretty, but if you were tantalized by the picture-story in Playboy, and are hoping to get a look at the girls in the flesh in wide-screen color, forget it.

There is less skin exposed than in previous Bond movies. The scene always seems to come to a close just as the zipper gets halfway open.

The story concerns the evil dictator of a Caribbean island (Dr. Kananga, played by Yaphet Kotto), who plans to give away a million pounds of heroin free, in order to put the Mafia out of business and gain a monopoly in the drug trade for himself.

Naturally James Bond must destroy the opium poppy fields and kill the evil Dr. Kananga before the whole free world is overrun by drug addicts. Why

Dr. Kananga should want to kill the British ambassador to the U.N. (which puts James Bond on his trail) is never explained, just as practically nothing else in the movie is explained satisfactorily.

But forget the plot. Live and Let Die is good kiss-kiss-bang-bang and one-damn-thing-after-another from start to finish. It's not as good as Goldfinger, or even You Only Live Twice (the last Bond picture, and Connery's swan song), but it's way ahead of Thunderball and On Her Majesty's Secret Service.

— Richard Irving

Auditions Open for Theater

Auditions for the Twelfth Night by Wm. Shakespeare were announced today by Fred Vesper. Vesper, whose specialty is Shakespearean Theatre, has returned to UNO after a two year leave of absence for advanced study.

The Twelfth Night, often called the most musical of Shakespeare's plays, has been referred to by some scholars as a "symphony."

There are numerous roles ranging from major to non-speaking parts. Some twenty-five players plus musicians capable in the guitar, lute, recorder, etc., can be used in the production. Mr. Vesper stresses that this is an ideal play for college actors since most of the characters in the play are youthful.

Auditions are open to the public and will be held in the University Theatre (1st Floor Adm.) from 2:30 to 5:00 and from 7:00 to 10:00 P.M. on Tuesday, September 4. Other audition times can be arranged. Scripts may be obtained in the Drama Offices (219 and 221 Adm.)

For further information please call 554-2430. Non-actors interested in working with the production in any capacity should come to auditions or call Ralph Murphy at 554-2422.

Five Afghan Government Administrators To Study Public Administration at UNO

Prof. Christian L. Jung, program director of the Afghanistan Studies and Research program, today announced that the Agency for International Development (AID) has selected UNO as the training site for five senior administrators in the Afghan government. As part of the program during the 1973-74 academic year, they will be enrolled as non-degree students at UNO and take courses in public administration and management, and also attend workshops and seminars. Three are from the Ministry of Education, and two are from the Ministry of Planning.

AID also has selected UNO to work with other Afghan government officials seeking graduate degrees in public administration Jung said. One student will begin course work at UNO this semester, and three others will enroll in January. All are from the Ministry of Finance. In January AID will send a Kabul faculty member to UNO to pursue course work leading to the masters degree in geography.

The exchange program also involves two faculty with Fulbright-Hays Lectureships. Prof. Ghulam Panjshiree, professor of Arabic and literature at Kabul, is teaching at UNO this year and Dr. Gordon Schilz, professor and former chairman of the UNO Department of Geography and Geology, is teaching at Kabul. Other UNO faculty may go to Kabul in the future, Prof. Jung said.

UNO is the administrative center for the international Afghanistan Studies Association. This is part of the Association for Asian Studies which has more than 10,000 members and is the largest global scholarly organization with emphasis on Asia. Prof. Jung was recently appointed executive secretary of the Afghanistan Studies Association.

Shuttle Bus Operating Between NU Campuses

A shuttle bus service is now operating between the University of Nebraska's campuses. Three trips are scheduled each day.

Trip one: Leave UNO 7 a.m., leave Medical Center 7:10 a.m., arrive UN-L 8:25 a.m. Return — leave Lincoln 9 a.m., arrive UNO 10:10 a.m., arrive Medical Center 10:20 a.m.

Trip two: Leave Lincoln 10:50 a.m., arrive UNO noon, leave UNO 12:52 p.m., arrive Medical Center 1 p.m., leave Medical Center 1:10 p.m., arrive Lincoln 2:30 p.m.

Trip three: Leave Medical Center 3:15 p.m., leave UNO 3:30 p.m., arrive Lincoln 4:45 p.m. Return — leave Lincoln 5 p.m., arrive UNO 6:10 p.m., arrive Medical Center 6:20 p.m.

Suicide Crisis Service to Train Volunteers

Personal Crisis Service, Omaha's only 24 hour telephone counselling service will begin to train new volunteer telephone counsellors Monday, September 3.

The training program is open to anyone interested in doing volunteer work for the Personal Crisis Service organization, according to Barbara Wheeler, PCS Director. "It is a good way for people to do volunteer work from their homes," Mrs. Wheeler said, "because our telephone counsellors use their own home phones while on duty."

Personal Crisis Service is a six-year-old completely volunteer organization which specializes in telephone suicide prevention and personal crisis intervention, while also providing over-the-phone listening and counselling for any type of personal problem.

Telephone counsellors receive a total of 54 hours training over a six-week period in preparation for their duties. Thirty of these training hours are in the area of crisis intervention; 24 of them deal with suicide prevention.

Classes will be held at the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. They will be three hours in length and will run through October 11.

Interested people may contact Barbara Wheeler at 571-0122 or Roland Nieves at 291-3493.

Y.D.'s Organizing

The UNO Young Democrats are now organizing for this current school year. If interested call Doug Clark at 333-9047 or leave your name and phone number in the Young Democrat mailbox at the Student Center Information Desk.

CAMPUS SPORTS

CAMPUS

INTER COLLEGIATE SPORTS • INTRAMURALS • SPORTS FEATURES

the benchwarmer by D.E.Smedley

Writing my first column as Sports editor left me picking my brains for an intelligent and editor-like way of saying what I want to say.

Just saying what I want to say seemed the most obvious direction to take, so I took it.

As a journalist, my primary interest is to report the news. Writing in the sports section of this newspaper presents an opportunity for hair-splitting.

What, in the area of athletics on campus, qualifies as news?

Certainly, varsity team and intramural schedules have a legitimate claim to newspaper space. I feel these schedules deserve prominent placement on the sports page for the sake of those participating and for those who wish to observe the events.

Recording the results of the scheduled events also seems to be desirable. I don't intend a blow-by-blow description of each event. This will tend to become tedious.

There is more to a sports page than game results and press releases.

As a journalist, I feel an itching to do in-depth, investigative reporting. While a lot of the news on these two pages will be of the more routine type already mentioned, I feel sports news is just as valid an area of news as any other area covered by this paper.

Sports news, like news on the front page can't always be happy news. It can't always be sad. It is my policy to report and publish news.

If my reporters and I stick close to the surface, the sports page will remain on the level of a public relations instrument for the athletic department. I don't intend this.

The athletic department doesn't bring the news to us, we bring the news to our readers.

With the switch from the NAIA to the NCAA, with the upgrading of many of the programs and with the artificial turfing of the football field, there is a lot to write about UNO athletics.

In the past, it seems to me, women's athletics at UNO has received painfully little in the way of coverage and space on the sports page.

I intend to put an end to this tradition.

I feel the women athletes of this campus and their activities are as deserving of recognition as their male counterparts.

Intramurals, in addition to regular schedule and result coverage, will have a special section devoted to it every six weeks or so.

Working on the sports page with me this fall will be Kevin Carolan and Dave Coulton.

Kevin was sports editor of this past summer's Gateway. He has been a real asset in helping me to get this page started. He's given me a better working knowledge of the athletic department.

Dave wrote for the sports page last spring and again this past summer. His experience is going to come in handy.

I've come to appreciate quickly the number of hours and work involved in putting out two pages such as these. I look forward to a busy and stimulating semester.

My goal is comprehensive and responsible journalism. This allows no room for patronization.

6'9" Drake Forward Joins the Mavericks

Larry Seger will enter UNO three years after coach Bob Hanson tried to recruit him.

Seger, a 1970 graduate of Benson High will play out his senior year at UNO after spending three years at Drake University.

Explaining why he left Drake, Seger said, "They brought in a Junior College transfer and had a player up from last year's freshman team, I just saw the handwriting on the wall."

The move to UNO was a logical one for the 6-9 forward. He has worked out with UNO players every summer. Seger gave three reasons why he chose to come to UNO "I didn't figure in their (Drake's) plans, I knew coach Hanson, and this is my hometown."

Seger will be able to play this year instead of sitting out a year before becoming eligible, which is the usual practice for transfer students. This is due to the one year probation UNO will be on this year.

Seger is anxious to participate on the UNO squad this year. "I'm not guaranteed a spot on the team. I'm going to have to come in and earn it. I'm very excited to have a chance to help UNO," Seger said.

Coach Hanson feels Seger will be a "good addition" to "undoubtedly the toughest schedule we've ever played. We're very happy to have Larry on our team for the coming season as he is a very fine basketball player and will give added height to our front line."

Tryouts Start

Women's Intercollegiate Athletics is off to an early start this year at UNO with Volleyball tryouts starting in early September.

UNO's women's volleyball team will compete on a varsity level in 18 matches with other colleges and universities this fall.

Ms. Connie Claussen, UNO's women's Athletic Director, stipulated, "you don't have to be a PE major to tryout for the team." The only requirements are that team members have to carry 12 hours or more during the semester and must have a 2.0 or better Grade Point Average.

Ms. Claussen said she is aiming for the state championship tournament to be held at Doane College in Crete, Nebraska on November 16th and 17th.

She encourages women to come out and take part in the women's athletic program.

Cross Country Captains

University of Nebraska at Omaha assistant cross-country coach, Jim McMahon, recently announced the team's co-captains for the 1973 season.

In an eight member vote the team elected two juniors, Lance Herold and Tom Mahr, each receiving four votes apiece.

Lance Herold, the Mavericks outstanding walker during the last indoor/outdoor track season, spent his high school days at Omaha Cathedral where he was three time Centennial Conference Champion in the two mile and Cross Country. His best 1972 time for the five mile run was 26:31.

Tom Mahr is another mainstay on the Mavericks cross country and indoor/outdoor track team. He is a graduate of Omaha South High School. Tom has a 1:58 half-mile and 4:36 mile to his credit, in addition to, his 25:39 five mile effort, accomplished during the 1972 season.

Workmen install drains for new Astro-Turf

New Schedule Tough

The athletic program at UNO has been trying in the last year to upgrade itself both in facilities and scheduling.

The Mavericks will play an independent schedule this season, having dropped out of the Great Plains Conference, as well as the NAIA, with the ultimate goal being mid-bracket operation in all sports.

Artificial turf, lights and additional bleachers will boost the seating capacity of the school's stadium to near 10,000 and will provide an improved playing field for night games.

The Mavericks Booster Club is trying to provide the impetus for a stronger grant-in-aid program for all sports.

UNO has re-joined the NCAA but will be on probation for the 1973-1974 season.

Since becoming independent, the UNO football team will be facing new opponents this year. Included are Jackson State of Mississippi, Angelo State of Texas and Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Work Continues on Turf Installation

Work continues on the installation of UNO's new Astro-Turf football playing field and rubberized asphalt track.

Last week, the Paulsen Construction Company was busy putting in water run-off drains for the turf.

A spokesman for the company said they are subcontracting from the Asphalt Paving Company. He stated his company is responsible for putting in the concrete curb around the field, the drains, the pole vault and the broad jump pits.

The Asphalt Paving Company, an Omaha firm, has contracted to do everything but lay the turf itself.

The field has been graded and the first layer of asphalt has been put down. This layer is three inches thick.

After an emulsified binder is put on the first layer of asphalt, a final one and a half inch layer of high grade asphalt will be put down. The Astro-Turf will be placed on this final layer.

The company is also placing an asphalt track, with a rubberized asphalt top layer, around the field.

Fred Gerardi, UNO Director of Sports Information, stated last Thursday that work at the stadium is slightly ahead of schedule. He said installation of the turf itself should begin in about two weeks time.

Because of the construction being done at the stadium, UNO's home football games will be played at Rosenblatt stadium this fall. The only possible exception will be the last home game of the season. It is hoped by that time to have the new Astro-Turf ready to play on.

Four UNO Trackmen Finish Outdoor Meets

Four UNO trackmen closed out their outdoor competition in track and field in a "metric orientated" meet in Papillion recently.

Leading the way was Frank Borowiak who scored in all six events he entered.

Dan Cutler, returning to competition after a vacation in Minnesota, placed in four of his events.

Tom Schrad, placed in three of his events, including a win in the high jump, his specialty.

Bruce Westerlin, UNO's freshman middle distance runner, finished third in the 400 meter dash.
